Call for Papers

The Southeastern Writing Center Association celebrates its first decade of service during its 11th annual meeting, April 11-13, 1991, in Birmingham, Alabama. Co-hosted by Samford University and The University of Montevallo, the Conference theme is Writing Beyond the Curriculum: Approaching the 21st Century. The Keynote Speaker will be Elaine Maimon, Dean of Experimental Programs, Queens College, CUNY.

Proposals should address how the writing center of the 1980s has prepared writers for success in approaching the 21st Century; how the experiences of writing center tutors and their clients have affected their lives after graduation; how writing center directors can serve the community as consultants to business, industry, and the health professions; or how the focus of the writing center during the 1990s will expand beyond the curriculum of the 1970s (remediation pedagogies) and the 1980s (process pedagogies). Papers on related topics will be considered. Send proposals to Dr. David W. Chapman, Associate Professor of English and Director, Writing Across the Curriculum, Samford University, Box 2207, Birmingham, AL 35229. Deadline for submissions is January 15, 1991.
